The designations employed and the presentation of the material in this publication do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the World Health Organization concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries. Dotted lines on maps represent approximate border lines for which there may not yet be full agreement.

The mention of specific companies or of certain manufacturers' products does not imply that they are endorsed or recommended by the World Health Organization in preference to others of a similar nature that are not mentioned. Errors and omissions excepted, the names of proprietary products are distinguished by initial capital letters.

All reasonable precautions have been taken by the World Health Organization to verify the information contained in this publication. However, the published material is being distributed without warranty of any kind, either express or implied. The responsibility for the interpretation and use of the material lies with the reader. In no event shall the World Health Organization or its Regional Office for Africa be liable for damages arising from its use.

The contents of this publication do not necessarily reflect official WHO views.

Some papers in this publication have not passed through formal peer review.

The African Health Monitor is a magazine of the World Health Organization Regional Office for Africa (WHO-AFRO) published four times a year (January, April, July and October). It is a multilingual publication with peer-reviewed articles in English, French and Portuguese.

The aim of the African Health Monitor is to promote and facilitate evidence-based policy and decisions to strengthening programmes for health promotion, protection, and restoration in the African Region. In order to achieve its aim, the Monitor serves as a medium for publication of articles that monitor the health situation and trends, and track progress toward the health-related Millennium Development Goals and other internationally agreed-upon goals. It will publish and disseminate relevant and scientifically rigorous public health information. It will also disseminate information on public health interventions carried out in the Member States with the cooperation of AFRO technical programmes.

Prospective authors should follow the Monitor stylesheet, which can be obtained by sending an email message to the Editorial Office at AHM@afro.who.int or by using this intranet link <http://intranet.afro.who.int/guidelines/ahm.pdf>
